Impediment #1 Discrimination-Disability	There is a shortage of accessible units with 2 or more bedrooms. This makes it particularly difficult for families that include a person in a wheelchair to find housing.	Zoning Code regulations: The Central City plan district regulations (in the Zoning Code) include floor area bonuses (more building bulk) for providing large units in certain districts. They are the: Large dwelling unit bonus in the West End (larger than 750 square feet) and large household dwelling unit bonus and; Large household dwelling unit bonus for units with two or more bedrooms in South Waterfront. Residential buildings in these districts are likely to be high rise with elevators which are conducive to being accessible.	Existing	Staff time/planning	Moderately Achievable

Impediment #1 Discrimination-Disability	Even when an accessible unit is available and advertised, it will often have been leased to non-disabled tenants before a disabled person has had the chance to apply. There is no requirement that public or private property owners reserve or hold open accessible units, or seek referrals from agencies that provide services to people with disabilities.	Require newly developed locally funded properties to hold accessible units available for persons with disabilities for some designated time period.	New	Staff time/planning	Moderately Achievable
Impediment #1 Discrimination-Disability	Discrimination on the basis of mental or physical disability.	Landlord Licensing - Implement a landlord-property management licensing program which would allow the requirement of fair housing training to rent properties and the ability to revoke the licenses of landlords who do not comply with fair housing and related laws. Impediment #1 Discrimination-Disability	The Fair Housing Act exempts new town home construction from accessibility requirements, and this is reflected in the local building code. Developers have been building a greater proportion of town homes due to lower cost and high demand. These new homes are not accessible.	Proposed Zoning Code Amendments: The City of Portland has no preference for town house development over other kinds of developments. Townhouses and row houses can be accessible if parking does not occupy the ground floor of the units. The Portland Planning Bureau's Infill Design Code Amendment Project is aimed at fostering alternative development types to the standard row house with ground floor parking. These amendments facilitate rear parking arrangements and courtyard oriented housing that lends itself to handicapped accessibility.	Existing	staff time/planning	Moderately Achievable
Impediment #1 Discrimination-Disability	The Fair Housing Act exempts new town home construction from accessibility requirements, and this is reflected in the local building code. Developers have been building a greater proportion of town homes due to lower cost and high demand. These new homes are not accessible.	PDC is requiring in some of the urban renewal development projects that one or more town home units are accessible. Challenges include ensuring neighborhood compatibility in design and limited funding in some of the older URAs.	Existing	funded activity, staff time/planning	Moderately Achievable
Impediment #1 Discrimination-Disability	Claims of discrimination based on gender identity are sometimes brought under the "disability" provisions of the fair housing law, because the plaintiffs are perceived as disabled, and because there is no protection available under federal law for transgender individuals. Impediment #1 Discrimination-Disability	Many of the homeless shelters run by the City and County are not accessible to people with motor disabilities, due to structural limitations affecting access, lack of accessible bathroom facilities, and failure to provide reasonable accommodation to homeless persons with disabilities. Impediment #1 Discrimination-Disability	Discrimination on the basis of mental or physical disability.	Fair Housing Services - The jurisdictions should continue to fund several organizations to provide a wide variety of fair housing services. This includes actively pursuing enforcement. Total funding for fair housing services is insufficient to meet the demand. Recent federal funding cuts has further reduced funding available to these services. This makes it particularly difficult for families that include a person in a wheelchair to find housing. This tool may also be abused to remove tenants who complain about unsafe or unhealthy conditions or asset their rights under federal, state, or local fair housing laws.	Challenge No Cause Eviction in Court - A tenant who is a member of a protected class may choose to ignore the "no cause" eviction and remain in the property beyond the 30-day notice period. When served with a Forcible Entry and Detainer (FED), the tenant may fight the eviction by asserting as a defense that the eviction resulted from bias. This defense would shift the burden to the owner to show that the initial "no cause" eviction was not merely a pretext for discrimination. However, as a practical matter, few protected class members have the resources to obtain the assistance of counsel to challenge the eviction, or the sophistication to assert the defense pro se. Moreover, an unsuccessful defense can result in liability for court costs, attorney fees, as well as putting an eviction on one's rental history. This is a significant risk, and many people who suffer discrimination decide that it is not worth the effort to challenge the initial 30 day 'no cause' notice. Impediment #2 Discrimination-Race, Color, National Origin	Lack of documentation of citizenship creates a host of issues for immigrants who would be entitled to protection under the fair housing act from discrimination based on national origin. In Multnomah County, Latinos make up the majority of undocumented people. A person who lacks documentation may be reluctant to complain about violations of fair housing law and/or unsafe conditions, because of fear that they will come to the attention of the INS. People who lack documentation are protected by the Oregon Landlord Tenant Law, but may be unwilling to seek to assert their rights in court, for fear that they will come to the attention of the INS. Sig Issue #1 Location of Housing	Over the last 10-year period, Inner NE, North, and Inner SE Portland neighborhoods have gone through a gentrification process. Public investment in light rail, storefront improvements, and community policing played a role in supporting the gentrification, but the primary impetus came from the private market. Now, housing in most close-in neighborhoods is priced at a level that is not affordable to lower income households, limiting their housing choices. These areas also show declining poverty rates, emerging commercial amenities, and noted school improvement (with some exceptions). Sig Issue #2 Conversions	Due to the rapid increase in housing prices, many private owners are converting affordable rental properties to saleable assets, e.g. converting apartments to condominiums, selling off single family rental properties, selling mobile home parks, converting residential properties to commercial use.	New Conversion Ordinance - Develop new ordinance for all jurisdictions that provides appropriate protections to low-income households impacted by conversions.	New	Staff time/planning	Difficult to Achieve
Sig Issue #2 Conversions	Tenants in converting private properties typically lack legal protection and have no right to compensation.	New Conversion Ordinance	New	Staff time/planning	Difficult to Achieve
Sig Issue #2 Conversions	Mobile home owners may lose both their home and their investment in the unit when mobile home park owners sell the property the mobile home rests upon. A mobile home may not be in moveable condition, or it may be prohibitively expensive to relocate it.	New Conversion Ordinance	New	Staff time/planning	Difficult to Achieve

Sig Issue #3 Poor Quality Housing	Healthy Housing for Renters” Project Overview: A collaborative project of the American Lung Association of Oregon and CAT.	Urban renewal efforts target the acquisition and rehabilitation of existing affordable housing. PDC is currently developing a loan program that will help private property owners make necessary repairs to rental units that serve low income households. PDC administers lead-based paint grants for homeowners and Section 8 rental property owners to provide lead based paint remediation for low income households. PDC also administers home repair loans for low income homeowners in urban renewal areas. There are not enough resources to meets all of the housing repair needs.	Existing	Funded activity	Moderately Achievable
Sig Issue #3 Poor Quality Housing	There are currently no designated smoke- free units in any publicly funded affordable housing. Second hand smoke compromises the overall health of other building tenants. The adverse impact is particularly strong for children, tenants with respiratory problems and/or compromised immune systems.	The jurisdictions should participate in the Smoke-free Multifamily Housing Committee.	New	Staff time/planning	Readily Achievable
Sig Issue #3 Poor Quality Housing	A large proportion of affordable units in Multnomah County were constructed before 1978 and are contaminated with lead-based paint. Unless this hazard is remediated, lead paint chips pose a health hazard, particularly to young children. Many affordable units have interior mold. This poses a health hazard, particularly to people with respiratory impairments.	The City of Portland and Multnomah County have education and outreach programs for lead paint hazards for renters and landlords, unit assessments, lead blood level testing and relocation services. Sig Issue #4 Screening Criteria	Landlord screening criteria that require a high income to rent ratio puts housing out of reach of many low-income households.	Work with landlord and property management industry to adopt lower income to ratios.	New	Advocacy	Difficult to Achieve
Sig Issue #4 Screening Criteria	The practice of requiring prospective tenants to pay for a separate credit report at each property they apply at, limits the ability of low-income households to seek out their choice of housing.	Work to allow renters to access multiple credit reports for a reduced fee (look more into model used in San Francisco Bay area)	New	Advocacy	Difficult to Achieve
Sig Issue #4 Screening Criteria	People with any contacts with law enforcement will face significant barriers to housing. Some landlords use outdated or irrelevant criminal history information to screen out tenant applications. The use of "police contacts" may also be being used for screening. We believe that some of these criteria have a disparate impact on people of color.	The County should provide a more systematic way to clear out-of-date infractions from the criminal records of people with good records for long periods	New	Advocacy	Difficult to Achieve
Sig Issue #4 Screening Criteria	Screening criteria commonly used by the industry (e.g. rent to income ratio, history of eviction, credit history, criminal history) creates a barrier to housing for many.	Ready to Rent, Fresh Start and Risk Mitigation Pool - Fresh Start, Ready to Rent, and the Risk Mitigation pool offer landlords an incentive to relax their screening criteria by reducing the risk. These programs are underutilized. Increase usage of Fresh Start and Ready to Rent, programs that assist renters who do not meet traditional screening criteria.	Enhanced	Funded activity	Moderately Achievable
Sig Issue #4 Screening Criteria	Many low-income people lack knowledge about the rental process, rental/lease agreements, landlord and tenant rights and responsibilities. Sig Issue #5 Unavailability of Housing	The general unavailability of affordable housing units across the county continues to limit housing choice.	The City and PDC Affordable Housing Spring RFP has established funding priorities for housing that serves tenants with incomes below 30% MFI. PDC has developed housing strategies in urban renewal areas to ensure there is a range of housing available in urban renewal areas. The strategies identify the gaps in housing availability in terms of income affordability and housing type and establish development priorities to fill those gaps. There continue to be challenges related to the level of funding available, availability of land for development and neighborhood siting issues. Sig Issue #5 Unavailability of Housing	There have been instances where local residents, and /or neighborhood associations, have opposed the development of new affordable housing in their area. In some cases, low-income communities have resisted development of new affordable housing, claiming that the area is saturated. (e.g. Lents Town Center Urban Renewal Area).	Siting Program - The City of Portland should continue to fund the Office of Neighborhood Involvement to a administer a siting assistance program that promotes the siting of special needs housing by providing the community education, dispute resolution services and tools such as Good Neighbor Agreements.	Existing	Funded activity	Difficult to Achieve
Sig Issue #5 Unavailability of Housing	There have been instances of neighborhood opposition to the development of special needs housing.	Siting Program	Existing	Funded activity	Difficult to Achieve
Sig Issue #5 Unavailability of Housing	The general unavailability of affordable housing units across the county continues to limit housing choice.	PDC has developed housing strategies in most of the City's urban renewal areas establishing a priority of maintaining the stock of affordable housing in urban renewal areas and increasing the amount of low income housing with long-term affordability agreements (60-year affordability agreements). PDC funding affordable housing development in all of the non-industrial urban renewal areas. Challenges: In many URAs, the funding availability is lower than what would be needed to keep up with market dynamics resulting in the loss of affordable housing. Also, NIMBY-ism in Portland neighborhoods often results in project compromises that reduces the number of deeply affordable units in a project.
