Chief's Letter 1

Dear Reader:

This year marks the conclusion of my first year as Chief of Police. Reflecting back on 2004, there were some challenges the Bureau worked to overcome and many accomplishments that brought the community and police closer together.

Throughout this year we have been building new relationships and strengthening existing partnerships, all with the goal of reducing crime and the fear of crime through stronger community policing. In August, I brought two community policing resolutions to City Council for adoption. These resolutions included strategies for refocusing on community policing in Portland and were unanimously adopted by City Council. The strategies included: a recommitment to community policing, improving diversity, improving officer training, re-emphasizing non-discrimination policies, improving the investigation and review of use of force incidents, improving the employee discipline process, reducing the incidence of deadly force, and encouraging greater labor-management collaboration.

On November 24, 2004, our 2004-06 Community Policing Strategic Plan was adopted by City Council. In this plan, I included accountability as both a goal and a value in response to Bureau and community input. I have also asked that we include the values, as they are found in our Strategic Plan, on many of our publications as a reminder of what we stand for.

The highlights from the past year include:

- Our Citizen's Police Academy was re-instituted. This 10-week course created the opportunity for more of Portland's citizen leaders to gain a better understanding of why we do what we do.

- Portland received numerous political and dignitary visits because of the November presidential election. This always requires intense planning and flexibility from the officers and the community.

- To ensure our policies and procedures are the best they can be, we researched best practices at law enforcement agencies around the country. I want to ensure that the Bureau meets both national and community standards. Some of the policies we have re-drafted are: the use of deadly force, taser, performance and use of force review boards, and discipline process.

- We responded to the 89 recommendations made in the Police Assessment Resource Center (PARC) report on officer involved shootings and in-custody death incidents. In addition, we responded to the recommendations made by the Albina Ministerial Alliance in their 2003 report after the shooting death of Kendra James.

- Officer training was enhanced with the re-institution of 40 hours of in-service training for all sworn members. In addition, two weeks were added to the Advanced Academy, making it a 16-week course. Coupled with the training received at the State Basic Academy, our new officers' training exceeds national standards.

- I brought an expert on racial profiling from the Police Executive Research Forum to Portland to talk with Bureau managers and community leaders on her findings. We will continue with stops data collection and community dialogue on this very important issue.

For more information on Bureau accomplishments over this last year, please refer to the accomplishments section of this Annual Report.

When I started as Chief, I promised the community and Bureau members a Police Bureau that is focused on community policing. We have made great strides, and we will continue to work to further community policing in Portland.

Sincerely,

Accomplishments 2

Portland Police Bureau 2004 Accomplishments

Each of the accomplishments listed below relates to one of the following five goals as stated in the 2004-2006 Community Policing Strategic Plan.

Community Goals:
Reduce crime and the fear of crime
Improve the quality of life in neighborhoods
Improve the community and police partnership

Organizational Goals:
Develop and encourage personnel
Improve accountability

Reduce crime and the fear of crime

2004 Year-end stats and trends
Based on the 2004 calendar year end statistics, reported Part I crimes have decreased two percent from 2003-2004. Person crimes decreased nine percent and property crimes were down one percent, compared to 2003. Reported cases of aggravated assault decreased 12 percent and robbery decreased six percent; however burglary increased by 12 percent.

Arrest policies grant
The Bureau received a $498,724 grant with a primary goal of victim safety and user accountability. Two victims' advocates from Volunteers of America and Raphael House worked with the Bureau's Domestic Violence Response Team to provide services, resources, and education to crime victims in cases that involved weapons.

CAMIN2
Bureau resources and grant funds were used to develop the next generation of the Crime Analysis Mapping Information Network (CAMIN2). CAMIN2 provides a web-based crime analysis tool for all Bureau members.

Cold Case Homicide Detail
Two detectives and one detective sergeant from the Homicide Detail joined with an agent from the FBI and an investigator from the Multnomah County District Attorney's Office to create the Cold Case Homicide Detail in September 2004. Investigators are responsible for reviewing and prioritizing more than 280 unsolved homicides. The investigators employ technological advances to these cold cases. The public is kept updated on these cases through the Police Bureau's website, which highlights cases. The public may send a tip by email and can fill out a tipsheet online to help in apprehending those responsible.

Comstat
In March, Bureau managers met for the first Comstat meeting. Comstat is a problem solving model used to survey crime problems, analyze data, respond with actions and assess the results. Division managers report on their efforts to reduce crime and the fear of crime, and what partnerships they are developing in order to use all available resources. The Bureau moved to a Comstat model because of the success other law enforcement agencies have had in reducing crime using this model of problem solving.

Homeland security
Two homeland security grants enabled the Bureau to increase its readiness. Weapons of mass destruction response vehicles and trailer were purchased, along with a thermal imaging FLIR camera system for the Bureau's aircraft. Personal protective equipment for first responder safety was acquired. Site hardening plans were developed, which include enhanced security measures, cameras, and monitoring systems at each of the precincts.

Marijuana eradication grant
Grant funds were used to enable 26 Drugs and Vice Division officers to work 490 dedicated hours on the marijuana eradication grant program. The grant provided for officer overtime on specific marijuana eradication missions and projects.

Project Safe Neighborhoods Domestic Violence Firearm Reduction
The Bureau and its community partners instituted the Domestic Violence and Firearms Risk Reduction Project through the Project Safe Neighborhoods grant, which was awarded by the U.S. Department of Justice. The Bureau partnered with the Multnomah County District Attorney's Office and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms to reduce gun violence, apprehend and prosecute those who have illegal guns, identify and apprehend career armed criminals, and track illegal firearms. In addition, two grant funded community based victim advocates worked in the Domestic Violence Reduction Unit to review domestic violence reports, provide services to the victims of domestic violence involving weapons, and provide community education.

Improve the quality of life in neighborhoods

DUII saturation patrols
Officers from East Precinct, Traffic Division, and Southeast Precinct partnered with troopers from the Oregon State Police, deputies from the Multnomah County Sheriff's Office patrol branch and jail, and representatives from the Oregon Liquor Control Commission (OLCC) to conduct DUII saturation patrols on November 26 and 27 and December 10 and 11, resulting in 96 DUII arrests. Suspected impaired drivers were processed and transported to jail. OLCC representatives are conducting follow-up investigations of bars and taverns suspected of over-selling to intoxicated drivers.

Senior Neighborhood Officer (SNO) and Neighborhood Response Team (NRT) Summit
On April 29, 2004, Senior Neighborhood Officers and Neighborhood Response Team Officers met at East Precinct along with crime analysts and command staff. They identified issues, problems and accomplishments from all participants. A common thread among all the groups was community policing, including educating the public, reducing crime and the fear of crime, and improving neighborhood livability. At the summit, the question was posed to participants if it was necessary to have two titles for officers who are currently performing similar duties. Of the 30 responding, 22 were in favor of the Neighborhood Response Team title. Effective July 1, 2004, all Senior Neighborhood Officers are identified as Neighborhood Response Team Officers.

OldTown/Chinatown/Downtown initiatives
The Police Bureau partnered with other stakeholders in developing strategies to address livability crime problems in Old Town/Chinatown and Downtown. Three pilot projects were developed and implemented. The Neighborhood Livability Crime Enforcement pilot project concentrates law enforcement efforts on known recidivists and targeted drug enforcement mission. Access is a targeted street intervention project. First Response Project is a partnership for outreach and assistance to the homeless.

Improve the community and police partnership

Albina Ministerial Alliance (AMA) recommendations responses
In June, the Bureau provided responses to the recommendations from the September 2003 report by the Albina Ministerial Alliance for the May 5, 2003 officer involved shooting death of Kendra James. Bureau responses included updates on training, policy and procedure, and investigation protocols after an officer involved shooting.

Citizens Police Academy
The 10-week Citizens Police Academy was reinstituted on September 30, 2004. The Citizens Police Academy is an opportunity for citizens and police to share information, learn more about each other and engage in dialogue. Citizens receive training on firearms, patrol vehicle operations, scenario-based training (PRISM), and police technology.

Community Policing Office opens
The Kenton Community Policing Office held a grand opening on February 27, 2004. Kenton Lodge No. 145 contributed 1,000 square feet of office space for 10 years at no cost to the city. The space was remodeled and furnished from $200,000+ of contributions from community organizations and businesses. The office is used by police officers to write reports and community volunteers distribute crime prevention materials and make victim call-backs.

Latino Advisory Council
Chief Foxworth worked with leaders in the Latino community to restructure and form a new Latino Advisory Committee. Several informational meetings were held where the function and structure of the committee was discussed. The advisory committee meets once a month to problem solve and discuss issues facing Portland's diverse Latino community.

Strategic plan sounding boards
In March and April, the Bureau hosted four strategic plan sounding board meetings for community representatives of the Bureau's nine advisory groups and members of the City Club subcommittee on community policing. Every division manager presented sounding board participants with information about their draft strategies. Participants were able to provide feedback on these draft strategies.

Develop and encourage personnel

Electronic Field Reporting
Updating and streamlining the current police reporting method has many advantages; more timely access to data and other reports is essential for community policing efforts, such as problem solving, crime analysis and managing daily police resources. Electronic reporting will also integrate into PPDS for a quicker data collection, entry and analysis. In 2004, the Bureau contracted with ThirdWave Corporation to provide the system. Bureau staff and ThirdWave conducted Bureau-wide sessions to determine what forms and functions will be available, conducted business process re-engineering for how reports flow from Records to internal and external partners, and purchased and installed the equipment that is needed for this new system. Demonstrations on the application were conducted November 30, 2004.

In-Service training
Chief Foxworth reinstituted a 40-hour in-service training beginning October 18 for 30 weeks for all sworn personnel. Participants will receive one-day of classroom instruction on blood borne pathogens, cultural competency, police response to seizures and epilepsy, communications with the mentally ill, and legal updates. They will also receive three days of tactical training including patrol tactics, Taser certification, CPR, firearms, and tactical communications.

Recruitment
The Police Bureau and the Bureau of Human Resources began an aggressive recruitment and marketing effort to hire a diversity of police officers. The slogan – "For every Portland police officer there is a story, join us and write the next chapter" – was selected and launched the recruitment process. Recruitment efforts are focused locally, with emphasis on minority and women candidates.

Web-based recruitment
Recruitment information on the Police Bureau website included updating our home page employment graphics and redesigning of the main employment page. Additional updates included posting of a monthly pretest workshop calendar, updating testing dates, adding a written test guide, and creating graphics to enhance the officer testing section of the site. Recruitment ads were also placed on a variety of employment web sites.

Improve accountability

Community policing resolutions
Chief Foxworth and Mayor Katz introduced two resolutions to City Council, adopted August 4, 2004. The first was a recommitment to community policing in the City of Portland, which recognized that community policing requires participation from City Council, other city bureaus, and the community. The second resolution identified priority policies, issues, and detailed strategies to enhance community policing services. These priorities included:

- Improving diversity within the organization.
- Improving officer training.
- Re-emphasizing non-discrimination policies.
- Improving the investigation and review of use of force incidents.
- Improving the employee discipline process.
- Reducing the incidence of deadly force.
- Encouraging greater labor-management collaboration.

A report on the progress made toward these items was presented to City Council in November.

Community Policing Strategic Plan
The 2004-06 Community Policing Strategic Plan was adopted by City Council on November 24, 2004. The plan focuses on our renewed emphasis on community policing and includes strategies that move the Bureau in that direction. The condensed language and format allows for an easier review of the plan. A new goal and value of accountability was added in response to community and internal feedback.

Community Police Organizational Review Team (CPORT) recommendations issued
In March, CPORT issued their final report of recommendations. CPORT was formed after the May 5, 2003 officer-involved shooting of Kendra James and was made up of both community and Bureau members. Recommendations from the report included: inclusion of a policy statement on the value of human life in the Bureau's use of force policies, reporting and data collection on "gun drawn and pointed" incidents, increased staffing levels, communication restrictions during officer-involved shooting investigations, adoption of a use of force board, Taser deployment training and tracking, requiring CIT skills training for all officers, recruitment strategies in local minority communities, and continued inclusion of a community member on the Oral Review Board.

Police Assessment Resource Center (PARC) recommendations response
The Police Bureau responded to the 89 recommendations from PARC dealing with officer involved shootings and in-custody death incidents and implemented changes to Bureau policy and procedure on training, and investigation protocols in response to PARC's report. Responses include: a Use of Force Review Board (see Review Boards below), a draft directive on deadly physical force now includes a section on the sanctity of human life, adoption of a Use of Force Report Form to track use of force incident information, and stricter communication restriction orders for members involved in deadly force incidents.

Review Boards
The Review Boards are comprised of Bureau members and citizens. The Performance Review Board is responsible for reviewing all investigations where serious violations of Bureau policies or procedures have been sustained against a Bureau member. The Use of Force Board determines if the level of force used by an officer was within Bureau policies, then issues recommendations to the Chief. This Board will review all officer involved shootings, any serious injury caused by an officer that requires hospitalization, all in-custody deaths, less lethal incidents where recommended finding is out of policy, and discretionary cases referred by the Chief or Branch Chief.

Use of Force Report form
A new Use of Force Report Form was adopted in August 2004. With this form, the Bureau collects data on the various uses of force by members during the course of their duties. The data will enable the Training Division to evaluate training and to recommend changes to training and policy, and will also aid the continuing efforts of the Police Bureau to be accountable to the community.

Note: Rates are based on residential population data. Many factors can influence the Rate/1000 Population calculations and can affect meaningful comparisons among neighborhoods. For example, the large work force in the Lloyd, Downtown, Old Town/Chinatown, Pearl and Northwest Industrial neighborhoods can distort the crime rate for those areas.
