TO: All Bureau Employees

SUBJECT: Discipline Guide

As Chief of Police, it is my responsibility to ensure accountability for our individual actions and to improve employee behavior and performance. In doing so, we reinforce our organization's values and maintain our credibility and trust with the community we serve.

Typically, disciplinary action is used as a means to correct unacceptable behavior and as a tool in setting and enforcing Bureau standards. When making recommendations to the Commissioner-in-Charge for discipline or imposing discipline, I ask for and receive input from a wide variety of resources, including the Police Review Board, union representatives, and other management and advisory personnel such as the RU manager and the Bureau of Human Resources.

My goal is to apply disciplinary standards in a fair and consistent manner. Nationally, many law enforcement agencies use a discipline matrix when considering the appropriate level of discipline resulting from administrative or performance investigations.

At my direction, the Professional Standards Division convened a workgroup to develop a Discipline Guide. The workgroup collaboratively gathered and reviewed historical PPB data, and policies of other agencies, in order to develop a guide to be used by Portland Police Bureau, RU managers, the Police Review Board, and the Chief of Police when recommending corrective action.

Workgroup stakeholders invited to attend and participate included representatives from the Operations Branch, Services Branch executive lieutenants, Training Division, Personnel Division, Independent Police Review Division (IPR), City Attorney's Office, PPA, PPCOA, AFSCME, Professional Standards and Internal Affairs.

The objectives of the workgroup in the development of the guide included: providing a mechanism for improved timelines within the discipline process; promoting a mechanism for positive change in behaviors and/or performance; making recommendations to improve the corrective action and discipline process; providing guidance to supervisors who make disciplinary recommendations; promoting and providing consistency in disciplinary actions; providing officers with an understanding of possible outcomes; and improving accountability.

The workgroup has developed a Discipline Guide through a thoughtful collaborative process over a period of several months. In practice, the guide will accompany Internal Affairs and/or performance investigation investigative material to be reviewed by the RU manager; Police Review Board, and the Chief of Police when considering corrective action recommendations to the Commissioner-in-Charge.

The Discipline Guide will become effective on March 1, 2014. This new Discipline Guide replaces the previous standard of “past practice” when deciding what discipline is appropriate to recommend.

The discipline process can be difficult and emotional for everyone involved. My hope is that as we continue to support one another in meeting expectations, there will be fewer disciplinary decisions that will need to be made.

Any prior sustained violation involving the same or similar misconduct within the specified time frame, in a category greater than or equal to the current violation, may be considered as one prior violation.

Any prior sustained violation involving the same or similar misconduct within the specified time frame, in a category lower than the current violation, may be considered as an aggravating factor.

In cases involving multiple concurrent sustained violations, the presumptive discipline level will be set at the category of the most serious sustained violation. The additional violations may increase the penalty level by 1.

Disciplinary actions are determined by the Police Commissioner and/or the Chief of Police and/or their designee. The Police Commissioner and/or Chief of Police may deviate from this guide as conditions and circumstances warrant.

One year is defined as one calendar year from the date of discipline.

Mitigating factors to consider include (but are not limited to): circumstances surrounding rule violation; complimentary history including commendations, letters of appreciation, awards and medals; prior work history, such as positive evaluations and/or work performance, volunteerism, advanced job-related training; discipline history; the member's years of service; training received specific to the behavior in question; willingness to accept responsibility; member's intention in taking or not taking action.

Aggravating factors to consider include (but are not limited to): potential or actual injury or harm to the member of the public or bureau member; rank of the officer who committed the violation; member's prior discipline history or corrective action history; potential impact to the Bureau mission or operations; loss or damage to city or private property; unsatisfactory work performance; failure to meet documented expectations (i.e. Letter of Expectation, Work Plan); training received specific to the behavior in question; documented history of unsatisfactory performance; failure to accept responsibility; member's intention in taking or not taking action.

This guide supplements existing City and Bureau policies, including Directive 341.00 and City of Portland HRAR 5.01.
