Previous Park Improvements

Water Bureau crews realigned stormwater drain pipes off the Holgate Trail.

Large boulders once blocked the south entrance to the Holgate Trail. Water Bureau crews made access much easier for hikers, bicyclists and equestrians.

The aging Caretaker's House was replaced in 2008. The new home allows for more community meeting space, indoors and outside.

A 2005 drainage study that included local citizen involvement proposed bioswales as an alternative to concrete drain ditches for the new reservoir.
