Alice Nielsen, Bureau of Development Services

Alice is an exceptional manager who keeps taking on more work while supporting her staff. She shows appreciation for concern to our well-being including mental and physical health during these difficult times by checking in with us individually and really listening. She doesn't just 'talk the talk' she 'walks the walk' always keeping an eye on equity in the workplace while remaining an outstanding role model in more ways than I can list here. We have challenging Equity discussions as regular part of our team meetings and critically think how these topics can help us better understand how our day to day lives both inside of work affect not just ourselves but everyone in our communities. She keeps us positive and shows management can be supportive while helping staff deliver high quality meaningful work every day.

Wonder Woman Award 2022

Anne Castleton, Bureau of Development Services

Wonder Women lead the charge to save others. Wonder-Responders demonstrated their commitment to help others during a long 2-year COVID-19 response that tested the limits of emergency response capacity to extremes. Every person was affected and touched by the pandemic. During this prolonged response and with many major adjustments for all in the City, additional emergencies arose – a heat dome with deadly excessive heat, snow and ice storms, power outages, and a chlorine shortage. The City set up shelters and vaccination clinics, we planned for continuity of operations, we discussed safety protocols and implemented them, and the City Emergency Coordination Center along with other Bureaus, remained activated on duty throughout this tumultuous time. Our female colleagues and work friends met the pandemic challenge, adapting in ways we never knew would be needed. I am proud of all of their efforts, and grateful for their steady resolve, their resilience, and their tremendous support. Some of my heroes may not think they were serving as responders, because they were doing their regular work, but it is often the foundational core duties that others perform that support successful emergency response. I greatly value that support and feel that everyone had a role in keeping the City functional, and in ensuring each others' safety – We got through this together. Wonder-Responders and the people who support their efforts all put on their COVID-Capes and became COVID-Conquerers, which is wonderful indeed!

Wonder Woman Award 2022

Deanna Hattan, Bureau of Development Services

I believe Deanna Hattan stands out as an exceptional City employee. She is very good at her job (OSSIII) within the BDS/Property Compliance Division. Deanna is responsible for helping customers who apply for a lien reduction review. When BDS places a lien on a person's property, it can become a very stressful situation. Housing inspectors help to make sure violations are corrected, but the property owner may be faced with large code enforcement fees. When they apply for a lien reduction, Deanna is there to help them navigate that process. Deanna diligently goes through case notes and case history, including phone calls, emails and has to track down inspectors to gather as much information as possible so that an equitable and fair outcome can be achieved. No one wants customers to have to pay fines, but if they do get fined, Deanna is able to help them navigate a difficult process which often leads to a reduction or removal of their liens. Deanna's helpful, friendly personality helps pave the way when customers are facing difficult circumstances, like facing a lien balance. Deanna is such an important part of the property compliance team. I am so happy we get to work with her!

WE ARE ALL WONDERWOMEN!

Wonder Woman Award 2022

Dory Robinson, Bureau of Development Services

Dory meets the “fabulous” standard in all three descriptions – a role model, a mentor and generally exceptional City employee. Dory is an amazingly proud and unapologetic black woman that this City needs in so many ways. That may not make it easy sometimes for some of us that work with her, but most of know, and those of us who know- really know how important she is as a role model. Her boundary setting and clarity of purpose are revealing and inspiring. Dory speaks her mind and shares ideas that benefit our community over our bureaucratic processes. She helps customers and small businesses, focused on black and systemically oppressed populations to navigate the permitting system. Dory helps build trust with our clients and community members that have a lot of reason to doubt and question local governments’ impacts. I believe that Dory’s power is so strong that the City will be hard pressed to retain her talents. While she is here, she serves as a mentor to everyone she works with through no nonsense, straight talk. It may take time for some folks to see the wisdom and courage of this, but I believe it will be revealed in the long run just how beautiful and important it is to have this type of interaction to learn and grow.

Elysabeth is also an equity leader on her team. It can sometimes be a stressful burden to be a person of color and responsible for educating others, but she is dedicated to helping her team learn and grow together around racially equitable outcomes for community. Elysabeth spends hours of her own personal time reading and reflecting on emerging equity concepts and current events and works with equity mentors and experts to craft well thought-out equity discussions. Jaimeleigh Salazar, Bureau of Development Services

Jaimeleigh Salazar brings her passion, knowledge and patience and is a role model for others on her team and BDS. She is a team player who thinks about the needs of the Bureau; this is demonstrated by her willingness to step up in times of need, most recently take over the instructor responsibilities for Equity Co-Facilitation due to the departure of a co-worker. In addition to her instructional design duties, she also has become an invaluable resource to Comms through work on onboarding new web administrators to the new employee web portal. In addition, she assists DRAC by helping them ensure meetings notes are available and posted to their website. These are all very tactical things, but it is the poise, professionalism, and authenticity she brings to her work that makes her a strong candidate for the Wonder Woman Award. Jaimeleigh builds bridges during times of stress both within her team and the projects she supports. Regardless of whether her nomination is selected, she will always be Wonder Woman in my eyes.
