Conditional Use Approval Criteria
Specified Uses in Industrial Zones, Ch. 33.815.125

What is a Conditional Use?
A conditional use is one that is not allowed outright because it may change the desired character of an area. After review, the use may be permitted if there are minimal impacts, or if impacts are mitigated.

How will the Bureau of Development Services (BDS) review my proposal?
Your Conditional Use proposal will be reviewed in either a Type II or Type III procedure. The review procedures are explained in this packet. If you want to know which procedure your application will go through, call Planning and Zoning at 503-823-7526 or visit them in the Development Services Center, 1900 SW 4th Avenue, First Floor.

What must I do to complete the application process?
A checklist of everything that you will need to submit with your application is included at the front of this packet. Use the checklist as a guide as you work through the application packet.

The written statement mentioned in the checklist is your opportunity to show how your proposal meets the necessary approval criteria. In addition to the written statement, you may include drawings and other documents which demonstrate how your proposal meets the approval criteria. Directions on how to address the approval criteria are included in this packet.

The site plan is a drawing which shows that your proposal meets the site development standards for your proposed use in your zone. Site development standards are requirements about how you can develop your site such as building height, setbacks, and number of parking spaces. The site plan is a document which shows that you intend to develop the site in a way that meets these zoning code requirements. In some cases, you will also submit building/landscaping plans which help show that you are meeting the site development standards.
