Neighborhood Planning

The Piedmont Neighborhood will face many challenges in the next twenty years. The Piedmont Neighborhood Plan was developed to identify issues that need to be addressed and to establish priorities for actions. Neighborhood plans are intended to be community-driven and address the problems that residents of the neighborhood feel are important. This plan reflects issues that the neighborhood is willing to commit time and energy to, both during the planning process and into the implementation stage.

The City of Portland supports and facilitates the development of neighborhood plans for many reasons.

- A neighborhood plan provides guidance to decision-makers on matters of land use, social programs, capital expenditures and environmental issues.
- It stimulates a partnership between public and private interests to stabilize and improve neighborhood conditions.
- It encourages community leaders to undertake agreed-upon projects and to use community resources from neighborhood businesses and residents in these efforts.
- Finally, the development and implementation of a neighborhood plan involves Portland’s citizens in the City’s governmental process of decision-making. Neighborhood plans improve understanding and communication between citizens, City bureaus and decision-makers.

The Albina Community Plan

The Piedmont Neighborhood Plan was developed as part of the Albina Community Plan. The Albina Community Plan creates an overall framework for a nineteen square-mile area of North/Northeast Portland. This framework establishes programs, policies, regulations and identifies actions which are applicable to the entire study area or are needed to benefit the entire Albina community. The following policies and objectives have been included in Portland's Comprehensive Plan. Inclusion of these statements in the Comprehensive Plan requires that future land use changes in the Albina Community Plan area will be required to conform with the Albina Community Plan and applicable neighborhood plans as well as the city-wide Comprehensive Plan.

Comprehensive Plan Policy 2.25

2.25 Albina Community Plan

Promote the economic vitality, historic character and livability of inner north and inner northeast Portland by including the Albina Community Plan as a part of this Comprehensive Plan.

Comprehensive Plan Policy 3.8

3.8 Albina Community Plan Neighborhoods

Include as part of the Comprehensive Plan neighborhood plans developed as part of the Albina Community Plan. Neighborhood plans developed as part of the Albina Community are those for Arbor Lodge, Boise, Concordia, Eliot, Humboldt, Irvington, Kenton, King, Piedmont, Sabin and Woodlawn.

*Objectives:

1. Reinforce Piedmont as the Albina Community Plan by one of Portland's premier residential neighborhoods. Protect the neighborhood's heritage of historic structures and sites. Improve the neighborhood livability while fostering the diversity of its residents. Use the Piedmont Neighborhood Plan to guide decisions on land use, capital improvement projects, urban renewal and community development activities within Piedmont.

*Other objectives associated with Policy 3.8 have as their subjects the other neighborhoods within the Albina Community Plan study area which, like Piedmont, are developing neighborhood plans as part of the community planning effort.

Neighborhood Planning Process

The Piedmont 20 Year Neighborhood Plan Committee, a subcommittee of the Piedmont Neighborhood Association, started working on this plan February 1990. The committee's charge was to develop a neighborhood plan by working with the staff of the Portland Planning Bureau as they developed a district plan for the Albina Community. In addition to their participation in the development of this Neighborhood Plan, many members of the Piedmont Neighborhood Association actively participated in the development of the Albina Community Plan.

The following summarizes the development of the Piedmont Neighborhood Plan.

Neighborhood Planning Workshop - May 1990

The Piedmont 20 Year Neighborhood Plan Committee's first task was to host a Neighborhood Planning Workshop. This was held at Holy Redeemer School on Saturday, May 5, 1990. The Committee worked hard to involve as many people as they could with an extensive outreach program. Informational flyers were distributed to every housing unit in the neighborhood and the committee created a poster that was displayed in schools, local businesses, and churches. Julie Greene, committee chair, gave briefings on the progress of the plan at the Piedmont Neighborhood Association meetings in March and April and encouraged people to get involved.

Focused Planning Sessions - May 1990

After the workshop a series of five focused planning sessions featuring guest speakers were held in the evenings at the Peninsula Park Community Center. The sessions were designed to give residents the opportunity to talk with experts about issues affecting their neighborhood and allow them to further participate in the development of the neighborhood plan. The following is the schedule of the focused planning workshops that took place between May 9th and May 17th, 1990.

Topic: Transportation
- Barlow Tripper, Regional Light Rail, Bureau of Transportation
- Michael Holman, Arterial Street Classification Project, Bureau of Transportation
- Krys Ochia, Alternative Transportation Program, Bureau of Transportation

Topic: Business Growth, Development and Jobs
- Neil Kelly, N.E. Business Boosters
- Jonny Portis, Livability Coordinator, N.E. Neighborhood Coalition
- Colleen Acres, Economic Development, Bureau of Planning

Topic: Education and Family Services
- Stephen Griffith, Portland Public School Board Member
- Howard Klink, Multnomah County Department of Human Services

Topic: Land Use, Housing, Historic Preservation and the Environment
- Michael Harrison, Albina Community Plan, Bureau of Planning

- Esther Lev, Environmental Issues, Consultant, Bureau of Planning

Topic: Public Safety, Parks and Recreation
- Lt. Charles Moore, Neighborhood Revitalization, Bureau of Police
- Sharon McCormick, Crime Prevention Coordinator
Discussion Draft Piedmont Neighborhood Plan- May 1991

During the months of June and July the Committee met to develop the first draft of their policies, goals, and objectives which they presented to the Planning Bureau on August 1. Once submitted to the Planning Bureau the Piedmont Neighborhood Plan was integrated into the overall Albina Community planning process. Albina Community Planning staff worked during Fall 1990 and Winter 1991 to complete the Discussion Drafts of the Albina Community Plan and the associated neighborhood plans.

Over the spring and summer of 1991 the Discussion Draft Albina Community Plan and the associated neighborhood plans were reviewed through a series of community and neighborhood meetings and workshops. Ten district wide workshops were conducted to review the Albina Community Plan. The Piedmont 20 Year Plan Committee hosted an evening workshop to review the neighborhood’s Discussion Draft Plan. They compiled this information and presented the Planning Bureau with a list of recommended changes. These changes, as well as comments from the Albina Community Plan’s technical advisory committee, were incorporated into the Proposed Piedmont Neighborhood Plan.

The Proposed Piedmont Neighborhood Plan- February 1992

The Proposed Piedmont Neighborhood Plan was submitted to the Portland City Planning Commission for their consideration in February of 1992. The Planning Commission held four public hearings on the Albina Community Plan and the associated neighborhood plans, and 14 working sessions where they considered the testimony and requested amendments. The Commission’s consideration included inviting many who had testified at the four hearings back to participate in panel discussions on specific topics. Panel discussions were conducted on housing, plan implementation, business growth and development, transportation and urban renewal. Following the panel discussions the Commission reviewed the requested amendments and took tentative action on each. The Planning Commission made a number of changes that were suggested by individual Commissioners. The Commission directed that the Plan be republished as the "Planning Commission’s Draft Albina Community Plan.”

The Planning Commission’s Draft Albina Community Plan- September 1992

The Planning Commission’s Draft Albina Community Plan was published in September 1992. The Commission’s draft changed the Albina Community Plan in hundreds of ways. Notice was provided to all those who had participated in the Commission’s hearings process. Hearings on the Commission’s draft were held on September 22, October 20, and November 3, 1992. Additional working sessions were held on October 27, November 17 and November 24, 1992. At these hearings and working sessions the Commission reviewed public comments on their draft, including comments on proposed changes to the Piedmont Neighborhood Plan. Over 100 additional changes were requested. During their working sessions the Commission approved many of these changes including five amendments to the Piedmont Neighborhood Plan. On November 24, 1992 the Planning Commission adopted the Albina Community and the Piedmont Neighborhood Plan as amended during their deliberations.

Portland Design Commission and Historical Landmarks Commission- May - October 1992

At the same time that the Planning Commission was deliberating on the Albina Community Plan the Portland Design and Historical Landmarks Commission were reviewing the sections of the plan that addressed design and historic preservation issues. Both the Commissions held public hearings and working sessions during the summer and fall 1992.

The Landmarks Commission held a well attended public hearing at Portland Community College, Cascade Campus on the proposed historic design zones proposed in the Albina Community Plan. Julie Greene of the Piedmont Neighborhood Association presented a slide show of the proposed Piedmont Historic Design Zone.

Results of the Design and Landmark Commissions' consideration took two forms; recommendations on the locations of historic design zones and design zones that were advisory to the Planning Commission, and decisions on design guidelines that were final and went with the Planning Commission's recommendations to the Portland City Council. The Design Commission, Historical Landmarks Commission and Planning Commission all recommended approval of several design zones within the Piedmont Neighborhood;

- The Piedmont Historic Design Zone covers all of the Piedmont Neighborhood south of Portland Boulevard.
- The design zone along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard varies between a block to half a block deep along the west side of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard in the Piedmont Neighborhood.

The two commissions both approved the design guidelines to govern the design review process in the new design zones in Piedmont and throughout the Albina Community.

Planning Commission's Recommended Albina Community Plan- February 1993
In May and June 1993, the Portland City Council held two public hearings and reviewed amendments on the Planning Commission's Recommended Albina Community Plan and the associated neighborhood plans. The City Council amended the Planning Commission's Recommended Piedmont Plan in several ways based on amendments received during their review.

The most controversial issue was the proposed zoning along the west side of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. The Piedmont Neighborhood Association requested changing the Planning Commission's recommended zoning proposal along the west side of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard from Highland to Stafford Streets from R1 (High Density Residential) to CM (Mixed Commercial). City Council approved a modified zoning pattern which includes a CM/CS (Storefront Commercial) node from Highland to Dekum Streets and retains the rest of the proposed R1 zoning.

The City Council Adopted Piedmont Neighborhood Plan- October 1993
This document, the City Council Adopted Piedmont Neighborhood Plan, has been included as part of the Portland Comprehensive Plan. The Adopted Piedmont Neighborhood Plan has incorporated the amendments approved by the City Council. There has also been minor revisions in the introductory text and the additions of graphics and photographs.
Piedmont Subdistricts

Neighborhood Description

The Piedmont Neighborhood is located in the north central portion of the Albina Community Plan study area. The neighborhood has well defined boundaries which create an enclave of predominantly single family homes. Most of the neighborhood was established during the first half of this century. The entire Piedmont Neighborhood was planted by 1929 and 44\% (805) of the structures were built between 1920 and 1939. Ninety-five percent of the structures in the Piedmont Neighborhood were built before 1959.

The neighborhood boundaries are as follows. The western boundary is the I-5 freeway, the eastern boundary is Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard, the northern boundary is the north bank of the Columbia Slough and the southern boundary is Ainsworth Street. In the Piedmont Neighborhood, three distinct subdistricts have evolved within the neighborhood as a whole. These subdistricts have individual histories, characteristics, and land use patterns which require special consideration. For the purposes of this Plan these areas have been defined as the Residential Core, Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd. Corridor, and the North Industrial Area.

Residential Core

The largest subdistrict in the Piedmont Neighborhood is the Residential Core which is bounded by the I-5 freeway to the west, Ainsworth Street to the south, the railroad tracks to the north and varies between 50' and 100' west of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard, to the east. Except for Ainsworth Street, all of these boundaries sharply define the edge of the Residential Core. Ainsworth Street is the middle of the original Piedmont Subdivision, a historic design zone, which the Piedmont Neighborhood shares with the King and Humboldt Neighborhoods. Except for several distinct commercial nodes on Lombard and Albina, and several apartment buildings along Vancouver Avenue and Portland Boulevard, the majority of the land use in Piedmont's Residential Core is single family homes. Also located within this subdistrict are two schools (Holy Redeemer and Applegate), a church (Holy Redeemer), two public parks (Peninsula and Farragut) and a community center with an outdoor swimming pool (Peninsula Community Center).

(Right) There is a variety of well constructed older homes in the Piedmont Neighborhood.
Piedmont's North Industrial Area is bounded by the Columbia Slough to the north, the Union Pacific railroad tracks to the south, the I-5 freeway to the west and Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard to the east. The area, though predominantly used for manufacturing and warehousing activities, also includes a scattering of residential, retail, and office uses. The change in topography and land use create a physical and visual distinction between the North Industrial Area and the Residential Core to the south. This subdistrict contains two resources that are city-wide resources: the Columbia Slough and the Columbia Pioneer Cemetery. The Columbia Slough flows the entire length of Portland near the northern boundary. The 40 mile loop is planned to run along the northern bank of the slough. The Columbia Pioneer Cemetery, one of only two Portland Pioneer Cemeteries, is also located in Piedmont's North Industrial Area.

The Nabisco Company is one of the largest companies in the North Industrial Area.

The Piedmont Neighborhood Plan calls for a recreational trail along the Columbia Slough.
Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard Corridor

Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard runs the entire length of the Albina Community Plan area and is addressed at the district level. The middle of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard is the boundary between the Piedmont and Woodlawn Neighborhoods. The commercial uses and impacts of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard on the Piedmont Neighborhood are significant enough to warrant a separate subdistrict within the neighborhood. As Piedmont addresses the portion of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard that is located in its neighborhood, it is necessary to coordinate with the Albina Community Plan and the Woodlawn Neighborhood Plan.

Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard is the main commercial street in the Piedmont Neighborhood. It is classified as a Major City Traffic Street in the City's Arterial Streets Classification Policy. There are several vehicular services that are supported by the high traffic volume on Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. However, there are also many vacant lots and abandoned buildings along the west side of the boulevard. The zoning pattern now implemented through the Albina Community Plan calls for areas of general commercial, mixed commercial, employment and high density housing.

Much of Piedmont's crime is generated on and near Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. The Piedmont Neighborhood Association Foot Patrol was created in response to this problem and originally concentrated its patrols along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. Today, the Foot Patrol covers the entire neighborhood.

The Holman Garden Apartments, built in 1928, is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The Piedmont Neighborhood Plan calls for new multi-family development along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard to be compatible with the character of the adjacent Piedmont Historic Design Zone.
Piedmont Historic Design Zone

The Piedmont Historic Design Zone is one of seven historic design zones designated as part of the Albina Community Plan. The Piedmont Historic Design Zone, shared by the Piedmont, Humboldt, and King Neighborhoods, has four distinct sub-areas:

- The original Piedmont subdivision bounded by Portland Boulevard, Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard, Killingsworth Street and Commercial Avenue. (Piedmont, Humboldt and King Neighborhoods)
- Peninsula Park bounded by Portland Boulevard, Kerby Avenue, Ainsworth Street and Albina Avenue. (Piedmont Neighborhood)
- The Gainborough Subdivision bounded by Portland Boulevard, Albina Avenue, I-5 Freeway and Ainsworth Street. (Piedmont Neighborhood)
- Portions of Killingsworth Street from the I-5 Freeway to Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. (Humboldt Neighborhood)

The following is an excerpt from the Portland Planning Bureau’s Proposed Local Historic Design Zones in the Albina Community, May 1992.

The Piedmont Subdivision

The quarter section of land which later became Piedmont was granted to Henry Walsh by the United States Government on March 10, 1866. Pursuant to an 1885 act of Congress, this land was a Bounty Land Claim for his military service in the Mexican-American War. After changing hands several times between 1870 and 1888 with many legal questions over ownership, the entire parcel was sold for $24,000 to The Investment Company on June 22, 1888.

Edward Quabombush, first president of the Investment Company, 1900. (OHS- CN 014124)
Before this purchase, The Investment Company was incorporated on October 1, 1887, by Edward Quackenbush, William M. Ladd, William Wadhams, and S. P. Lee with the primary intention of investing $25,000 in real estate. This tract was called "Piedmont" due to its topography and mountain views. The Investment Company invited the Portland and Vancouver Railway Company to extend its tracks to Piedmont. This was done by deeding the railway company a 20 foot strip of land along Piedmont's eastern edge under the condition that a railway line be built and maintained within that strip which is now Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. In September 1888, the first rails were laid and ran east of the Piedmont Subdivision up to Portland Boulevard where the route angled northeast into the Woodlawn area and on to the Columbia River.
On October 15, 1889 Piedmont was officially platted and deed restrictions and conditions of sales recorded for those desiring to settle in perhaps Portland's first planned community. The plat included 15 feet wide alleys that ran north to south. All water, gas, and sewer pipes as well as all electric, telegraph, and telephone lines except where absolutely necessary for street lights, were confined to the alleys. Electric and horse cars were allowed on any street as long as there was consent of two-thirds of the street's property owners. The electric system was provided through an exclusive contract between The Investment Company and the City of Albina. This franchise was the last civic act of the Independent City of Albina before it incorporated with Portland and East Portland in 1891.

The Investment Company also established a local water system to serve the Piedmont area. The Company drilled a 200 foot well and erected a large wooded water tower on Portland Boulevard and Williams Avenue. The structure itself became a well-known landmark. The water tower was over 100 foot high and also contained an observation deck and an assembly hall. The water tower was destroyed in 1917 by an act of arson.

The amenities provided by the developers were accompanied with development regulations and deed restrictions that were designed to create a high quality, strictly residential neighborhood. Homes had to be built at least 25' from the street and 15' from the side lot line. A minimum construction price for a house was set, depending on the lot, at $2,500 or $3,000. Industrial and commercial buildings were excluded from the neighborhood. Also evident is the strict prohibitionist viewpoint of Edward Quackenbush, president of The Investment Company and organizer of the Portland Anti-Saloon League, which precluded any piece of Piedmont property to be used "for the purpose of manufacturing or vending intoxicating liquors for drinking purposes." The Piedmont Subdivision was one of the first instances of such amenities and regulations in the Albina community. Other areas that developed in this similar pattern are Irvington and Mock's Crest Subdivision in the Arbor Lodge Neighborhood.

A street in the Piedmont Subdivision today reflects the original regulations. Notice the 25' front setbacks, the street trees, and the absence of overhead utility wires.
Development of the entire subdivision was rapid. Between 1891 and 1907, each of the boundary streets were extended, except Commercial Avenue. By 1909, over 140 dwellings had been erected. The residents were primarily upper-middle class professionals who owned their own homes. Most of the workers commuted into Portland, but a few were employed by the Swift Meat Packing Company and the Monarch Lumber Mill, both located in the Kenton neighborhood along the Columbia Slough.

The pattern of primarily upper-middle class residents remained up until the 1940s. During the second World War, Kaiser Shipbuilding Corporation recruited large numbers of workers into the area. Quite a few of these workers moved into the Piedmont area to be close to the shipyards at Swan Island. This introduced more renters and the area was no longer strictly owner occupied.

Overall, most of the original large, single family dwellings remain in good condition. There has been very little incompatible infill development in the heart of the Piedmont Subdivision; less than ten structures. There have been about 100 houses scattered throughout the district, built between 1940 and 1967 that are compatible with the early homes. With the exception of the Piedmont Presbyterian Church and commercial structures along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard and Killingsworth Street, the area is exclusively a residential neighborhood.

The houses in the Piedmont Subdivision were original owned primarily by upper-middle income residents. (Drawings by Sand McDowell and Sue Middleton for the Piedmont Neighborhood Association.)

Peninsula Park

The site for Peninsula Park was identified in the Park and Boulevard Plan for the City of Portland developed by the Olmsted Brothers in 1903. The seventeen acre park was purchased by the city in 1909 for $50,000 with funds raised in a 1908 bond issue. Originally the site of "Liverpool Liz's Place", it had been a roadhouse and racetrack for quarter-mile horse racing. An auto-park and campground were also included in the original parcel. The park was designed by architects Ellis Lawrence and Ormand R. Bean and developed in 1913 as a part of Portland's City Beautiful Movement.

The formal rose garden in the south portion of the park was designed by Emanuel T. Mische, a famous landscape architect, Portland Park Board member, and later city commissioner. The rose garden was the showplace of its time, with 300,000 visitors in its first year. The official Portland rose, named "Mme. Caroline Testout" was cultivated in this garden. This rose, once planted by the thousands along the streets of Portland, earned Portland the name, "The City of Roses." In 1913, floral enthusiasts selected Peninsula Park as the location for an annual rose show. In 1917, Washington Park on Portland's west side was selected as the site of the International Rose Test Gardens and most of the rose show activities were moved there. However, Peninsula Park still plays an active role in Portland's Rose Festival by hosting the Junior Court coronation each year.
Overlooking the rose garden is an octagonal bandstand that was constructed in 1913. The bandstand is a National Heritage historic structure and was designated a Portland Historic Landmark in 1973. It is the last of its kind in the city. The community center, at the north end of the park, is Portland’s first and oldest community center. The Portland Lavender Club, a dance and social group for women over age fifty, originated here. The community center contains an outdoor swimming pool, and assembly hall and two gymnasiums— one for boys and one for girls. In 1915 Peninsula Park’s yearly attendance far surpassed any other municipal playground.

Physically, Peninsula Park remains relatively unchanged today. There have been some minor changes over the years, with the addition of a soccer field, picnic shelter, and other recreational facilities. The playground has been renovated with funds from the 1990 parks levy.

Unfortunately, over the years the park has experienced an increase of crime. The Piedmont Neighborhood Association, with help from the Community Policing Program and the Portland Parks Department has been working to reclaim the park as a safe neighborhood activity center.
Gainsborough Subdivision
The last section of the Piedmont Historic Design Zone to develop was the Gainsborough Subdivision. This residential area is eight blocks bound by Portland Boulevard, Albyna Avenue, Ainsworth Street and Minnesota Avenue. The homes were built in the late 1920s and 1930s and all have English Cottage and Norman Farmhouse style elements in their design. Most of the houses were built during the depression and are small one and two story structures. The craftsmanship of the brick facade detailing and the leaded glass windows is exquisite. At the time of their construction the area was considered a "Street of Dreams".

In the early 1960s two and a half blocks of the Gainsborough Subdivision were cleared for the construction of the Minnesota Freeway. Some of these homes were moved to vacant lots around the area. The freeway runs along the western edge of what remains of the Piedmont portion of the Gainsborough Subdivision. Even though the freeway is depressed at this point and the State Highway Department is constructing a sound wall, it still has adverse impacts on the area. Despite the freeway, this area has remained in good condition with a high level of home ownership.

This 1933 photograph shows English Cottage and Norman Farmhouse style houses of the 6000-6200 block of N. Michigan Avenue in the Gainsborough Addition shortly after their construction. (OHIS neg. CN 021733)
Piedmont
Vision Statement
A Vision of Piedmont’s Future
(Adopted as part of the Vision Statement of Portland’s Comprehensive Plan)

The mention of the name “Piedmont” brings instant recognition anywhere in the Portland area, but especially among people who are house hunting. Piedmont is a neighborhood where so many different types of people feel comfortable and “at home.” Residents include singles, couples, and families; young, old and middle-aged persons; every income level and race is represented. All enjoy living in an unpretentious residential area that is a bit removed from the central city, but still only 15 minutes from downtown (less by light rail).

Visit the Piedmont Neighborhood and you’ll notice the level of activity in the neighborhood all day, every day. The sidewalks are busy with people of all ages out for a walk to the store, to see a neighbor, to attend a community meeting, or just for the exercise. Look up and down the shady, tree-lined streets anywhere in the neighborhood and it is impossible to distinguish the rental homes from the owner-occupied homes. Pride is evident in the well-maintained yards and houses.

On most weekends, you’ll notice residents mowing their lawns, tending their flower beds or finishing up a home repair job. Their porches and yards are places where small children play together safely, well within the hearing range of their parents. Older children are seen heading off to part-time jobs with local businesses, to after school activities, or to one of the local parks. Peninsula Park is a recreational hub of the neighborhood. The Columbia Slough Parkway with its water and opportunities for natural science activities is another recreational amenity. Access to the Columbia Slough from Piedmont is safe and convenient by bike and foot paths that offer an alternative to busy arterial streets.

An artist’s vision of the recreational trail along the Columbia Slough. (Drawing by Judy Galantha)
Two Piedmont neighbors chat as they wait for the bus along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. (Drawing by Judy Galanha)

Most auto traffic is routed onto the main arterials around the residential core and flows smoothly along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard, Columbia Boulevard, and Lombard Street. Traffic control devices and enforcement of posted speed limits help to maintain traffic safety on neighborhood streets.

Traffic violations and disturbances are easily reported at one of the two Portland Police substations within the neighborhood. They were developed as part of the City’s Community Policing Program. Community Policing, which began in the late 1980s, is firmly in place. Its successes are especially evident in Piedmont where the trends of increasing drugs, gangs, and vice have been reversed. Residents walking through the neighborhood or waiting at bus stops feel safe and comfortable. Seniors living in the area feel safe walking together to the new Senior Center for the services that enable them to live independently in their own homes.

In many ways, Piedmont is its own small town. Residents from many different parts of the neighborhood know each other because their neighborhood offers many opportunities for residents to meet. They attend the monthly meetings of the Piedmont Neighborhood Association, Parent-Teacher Associations, and the Piedmont Historic Society. Each organization sponsors community events throughout the year. The Piedmont Foot Patrol is now the Piedmont Service League and funds projects to help improve the neighborhood—often in cooperation with the Piedmont Community Development Corporation.

Residents also meet one another at the day-care center, the fitness course at Holy Redeemer School, or one of the shops along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard or Lombard Avenue. They share the latest news about their jobs, their children, their home repair projects or local events. There is always news about a new development along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard or a new business relocating in the North Industrial Area. Business has prospered in the Columbia Corridor and many Piedmont residents who want to work close to home have found jobs there.
Piedmont neighbors and the North Industrial businesses both agree that the "industrial transition area" is what keeps their co-existence so pleasant. The transition from heavy industry to housing is accomplished by emphasizing light manufacturing and general employment uses in the area south of NE Columbia Boulevard and north of the railroad tracks. The concept of buffering one type of use from another has been wisely applied throughout the entire Piedmont Neighborhood to retain livability while promoting business growth and development. Generous setbacks, landscaping and screening have been provided by new developments where potential conflicts with existing uses exist. This has been especially effective in the redevelopment of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard.

Another achievement is the Piedmont Historic District located between Portland Boulevard south to Ainsworth Street and from Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard west to I-5. The homes of historic significance are now marked with plaques and visitors can take self-guided walking tours of the area. Tourists visiting Portland make a point of seeing the Piedmont Historic District and Portland's original rose garden at Peninsula Park.

A promotional booklet for the Piedmont Subdivision called it an "emerald" back in 1894. Today, we can continue to call it the "emerald neighborhood". It is an accomplishment shared by many: committed residents, home owners, investors, public and private organizations. Although many played an important role, its true beginning is found in the people who were Piedmont residents in 1990. People whose hopes for the future were put into action and resulted in these changes.
Piedmont Neighborhood Urban Design Map

By identifying neighborhood urban design elements such as gateways, attractions, edges and trails, this map illustrates the spatial relationship of places that are significant to the physical environment of the Piedmont Neighborhood. A district gateway to the Abina Community is identified at Martin Luther King Jr. and Columbia Boulevards. There are also seven neighborhood gateways identified that mark the entrance to the Piedmont Neighborhood. Peninsula Park Rose Gardens and Columbia Pioneer Cemetery have been identified as regional attractions, places where people from throughout the metropolitan area may visit. There are also five identified neighborhood attractions. Neighborhood attractions are places used primarily by local residents, such as Farragut Park.

The Piedmont Plan, through its vision statement, policies, and action items, builds on the strength of existing urban design elements and supports proposed improvements to the physical environment of the neighborhood.

Piedmont Neighborhood Policies, Objectives & Action Charts

Neighborhood Policies and Objectives

The Piedmont Plan has seven policies that will provide direction to help achieve the vision. The policies address housing, environment, historic preservation, transportation, community development, business growth, and public safety. Accompanying the policies are a series of objectives to provide specifics about how the policies are to be understood, applied and implemented. These policies and objectives, adopted by ordinance by the City Council, have become part of the Portland Comprehensive Plan.

Action Charts

Each policy is accompanied with an action chart that follows the policy’s objectives. The action items listed in the charts are ideas for capital projects and ongoing programs. These action items will not be part of the Comprehensive Plan. However, the City Council has adopted them by resolution. The action items are referred to as leadership items because accomplishment of these provisions is dependent on leaders in the community.

Some of the action items have been adopted with the Albina Community Plan and are changes in the City’s land use regulations and zoning map which have been adopted by ordinance. These changes became effective at the same time the policy provisions of the Albina Community Plan went into effect. These action items included base zone changes, overlay zone changes, and those that are dictated by Title 33.

The Piedmont Neighborhood Association has implemented many of the action items identified during the planning process. Those items that the Piedmont Neighborhood has implemented will be noted in the on-going category. Some of these actions include, a walking tour brochure for the Piedmont Historic Design Zone, street tree planting, rose garden training workshops and a summer concert series in Peninsula Park.

Residents attend a rose pruning workshop in Peninsula Park sponsored by the Parks Bureau.

Policy 1: Housing

_Promote and enhance Piedmont as a residential neighborhood consisting predominantly of single-family, owner-occupied homes whose residents represent a cross-section of the City's population, ethnically and economically._

(Policy adopted as part of Portland's Comprehensive Plan)

Objectives

1. Build name recognition for Piedmont throughout the Portland metropolitan area as a desirable urban residential neighborhood.
2. Promote owner-occupancy of homes within the Piedmont neighborhood's Residential Core.
3. Encourage and enforce responsible landlord management of rental property, through improved tenant selection and property maintenance.
4. Encourage new residential developments to be consistent with the existing character of the neighborhood.
5. Support multi-dwelling and mixed commercial development along portions of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. Full-block zoning should be used only where it has a minimal impact on existing housing and the Piedmont Historic Design Zone.

Throughout the years, many people have called the Piedmont Neighborhood home. In this 1915 photo, Richard and Libby Mae stand in front of their house on Buffalo St. (OrHi 65874)

Actions with an identified implementor are Piedmont with understanding that some will need to be adjusted and others replaced with more feasible proposals. Identification of an implementor for an action is an expression of interest and support with the understanding that circumstances will affect the implementor's ability to take action. Actions with a listed advocate rather than an implementor are included in recognition of the importance of continued discussion of these issues. Such actions will become part of this plan only when an implementor has agreed to support them.

Policy 2: The Emerald Neighborhood

Promote Piedmont as the "Emerald Neighborhood" by protecting and enhancing its parks, open spaces, and other natural resources. Continue to enhance local park programs and recreational resources to meet the needs of neighborhood residents.

(Policy adopted as part of Portland's Comprehensive Plan)

*Piedmont- The Emerald, Portland's Evergreen Suburb, 1889, was the name of the investment company's promotional booklet for the Piedmont Subdivision.

Objectives

1. Develop a nature parkway with access to the water and opportunities for natural science activities along the Columbia Slough as part of the 40 mile loop. Provide safe pedestrian and bike access from the Piedmont Neighborhood.

2. Maintain and enhance existing neighborhood park structures and vegetation. Provide better handicap access to all park facilities.

3. Maintain and plant additional street trees within the Piedmont Neighborhood.

4. Work with local private groups to develop an additional recreational facility accessible to the public in the Piedmont Neighborhood.

5. Promote the use of Peninsula and Farragut Parks for neighborhood and city-wide activities.

6. Educate residents and businesses about the methods and benefits of recycling.

7. Enhance the physical appearance of Piedmont by reducing litter and encouraging property owners and renters to maintain their yards and right-of-ways.

8. Create safe, attractive alleys by maintaining overgrown vegetation, eliminating debris accumulation and encouraging backyard lighting.

Piedmont residents participate in street tree planting day.

Policy 3: Historic Preservation

Cultivate neighborhood and city-wide appreciation for the architectural and cultural heritage of Piedmont. Strengthen the sense of neighborhood history in the Piedmont Neighborhood by encouraging restoration and preservation of the neighborhood’s historic resources.

(Policy adopted as part of Portland’s Comprehensive Plan)

Objectives

1. Establish a Piedmont Historic Design Zone in conjunction with Humboldt and King Neighborhoods to promote preservation and maintenance of the extensive inventory of fine old homes in the original Piedmont and Gainsborough Subdivisions.

2. Promote, preserve and restore historic structures within the boundaries of the neighborhood.

3. Require new development in and adjacent to the Piedmont Historic Design Zone to be compatible with the area’s historic character.

4. Preserve and maintain the Columbias Pioneer Cemetery by working with the county and interested private parties.

5. Promote Peninsula Park and the Piedmont Historic Design Zone as a destination for those visiting Portland.

6. Encourage activities and programs that educate Piedmont residents about the historical and architectural heritage of their neighborhood.

Policy 4: Transportation

Create a safe and pleasant experience for pedestrians, cyclists, motorists, and transit riders traveling in the Piedmont Neighborhood. Improve traffic safety and maintain circulation patterns that direct through-traffic to the periphery of the neighborhood. (Policy adopted as part of Portland’s Comprehensive Plan)

Objectives

1. Control traffic and enforce posted speed limits within the Piedmont Neighborhood. Give first priority to streets within school districts and local neighborhood streets.

2. Improve all streets that are unpaved or in disrepair.

3. Buffer the Piedmont Neighborhood from noise and other off-site impacts of the I-5 freeway.

4. Improve public transit, bike and pedestrian access for Piedmont residents to primary employment centers.

5. Improve public safety in buses and transportation facilities.

6. Support the development of a northern light rail corridor that will serve Piedmont residents and businesses.

7. Develop bicycle paths along designated routes that preserve on-street parking and connect to the city-wide bike system.

8. Reduce the impact of truck traffic on the neighborhood by enforcing the use of established truck routes.

Policy 5: Community Development

Improve the effectiveness of public and private organizations and groups concerned with the welfare of Piedmont to provide the neighborhood and its residents opportunities for personal improvement, empowerment and community development.
(Previous adopted as part of Portland’s Comprehensive Plan)

Objectives

1. Build a positive identity for Piedmont by its residents, neighborhood institutions and associations.
2. Foster the creation of a neighborhood-based community development corporation.
3. Build working relationships among the leadership of existing public and private organizations and groups concerned with the welfare of the Piedmont Neighborhood.
4. Develop neighborhood amenities and services that support and strengthen Piedmont as a residential neighborhood.
5. Provide social services information to Piedmont residents through neighborhood-based outreach efforts.
6. Develop specialized programs to meet the needs of Piedmont residents.
7. Provide a quality education and adequate school facilities for the growing number of neighborhood children.

Neighborhood children, their parents, city and school officials all declared Project: Safe Summer a success and celebrated at the Children’s Picnic in Farragut Park on August 14, 1993.

Holy Redeemer Elementary School, at Vancouver Avenue and Portland Boulevard, is located in the heart of the Piedmont Neighborhood.
Policy 6: Business Growth & Development

Stimulate business growth in the Piedmont Neighborhood that provides services and job opportunities for neighborhood residents with minimum impacts on the Residential Core area of Piedmont. Concentrate this development along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard and the North Industrial Area.
(Policy adopted as part of Portland’s Comprehensive Plan)

Objectives

1. Support mixed commercial development along portions of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. Full-block zoning should be used only when it has a minimal impact on existing housing and the historic district.

2. Foster the creation of well-lit and maintained parking facilities along Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard to support existing and new businesses.

3. Upgrade commercial development and facilities within the Residential Core and encourage new development and remodeling to be pedestrian oriented.

4. Reduce the negative impacts of all business growth and development on the Residential Core. Guard against these land uses encroaching into residential areas.

This drawing illustrates the type of pedestrian oriented mixed commercial/residential development the Piedmont Plan calls for along portions of Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard zoned for mixed commercial.

Policy 7: Livability and Public Safety

Reduce crime in the Piedmont Neighborhood. Develop a partnership between Piedmont residents, the City and the Police Bureau to build a safer neighborhood. (Policy adopted as part of Portland’s Comprehensive Plan)

Objectives

1. Develop Neighborhood Watch networks throughout the Piedmont Neighborhood.
2. Develop cooperative efforts with the Neighborhood Crime Prevention Program, the Northeast Public Safety Action Committee and other neighborhood associations concerned with improving public safety in and near the Piedmont Neighborhood.
3. Develop a working relationship among City, County and other government agencies that will effectively address public safety issues.
4. Encourage site and building design that increases the sense of security within the neighborhood and discourages criminal activities.

*This topic is also covered in the Albina Community District Plan.

Note: Action Charts were approved by Portland City Council by resolution. They are a starting place. Actions with an identified implementor were adopted with the understanding that some will need to be adjusted and others replaced with more feasible proposals. Identification of an implementor for an action is an expression of interest and support with the understanding that circumstances will affect the implementation leader's ability to take action. Actions with a listed advocate rather than an implementor are included by recognition of the importance of continued discussion of these issues. Such actions will become part of this plan only when an implementor has agreed to support them.

The Piedmont Neighborhood needs to be safe place for everyone.
