The Portland Bureau of Transportation owns and maintains about 4,900 lane miles of streets. (A lane mile is 12 feet wide and one mile long.) This includes 1,868 lane miles on busy streets: the routes that public transit, freight and commuters rely on every day (for example: NE Sandy Boulevard, SW Capitol Highway, 122nd Avenue). There are 2,983 lane miles of local streets which are mostly residential.

The bureau's pavement goals are to have 80 percent of the busy streets in a fair or better condition and no more than 2 percent in very poor condition. For local streets, the goal is 70 percent in fair or better condition and no more than 11 percent in very poor condition. Currently, 53 percent of busy streets and 40 percent of local streets are in fair or better condition. Overall, 45 percent of the pavement network is in fair or better condition.

The bureau's pavement maintenance policy calls for prioritizing early-stage repairs that can keep the roadway from falling into poor or very poor condition. It costs roughly ten times more to rebuild a street that has fallen into very poor condition than to conduct maintenance while the road is still in fair to good condition. In FY 2015-16, the bureau's paving program exceeded its goal of preserving 100 lane miles of streets, with a total of 103 miles repaved, repaired or sealed.
