

Work Begins on Annual Report

IPR is excited to share some of its accomplishments and challenges from the past year in its annual report. Because information normally included in the annual report is updated more often through IPR's interactive dashboards, the 2019 report will have a new look and focus. Along with some data reporting, the annual report will include new sections to share more about the office's goals, procedures, and topics we want to look into in 2020.

Fourth Quarter Data

IPR and Internal Affairs received 86 complaints from community members and 13 bureau complaints that did not involve community members during October, November, and December of 2019. Community and bureau members also filed 23 commendations during that period.

Community Complaints

Sixty-six of the community complaints were received by IPR and 20 came through Internal Affairs. IPR opened three cases as independent investigations, Internal Affairs is investigating 20 cases and intake is ongoing for 10 complaints. Twenty-one complaints were administratively closed, most commonly because no misconduct was identified. Thirteen complaints were referred to officers' supervisors for investigation and eighteen were referred to precinct commanders for follow-up. One case was referred for mediation.
