Licensing and Copyrights

A PHOTO PASS permit issued by PP&R provides the Permittee the rights to reproduce photos taken on park property.

Portland parks contain many pieces of public art that may be protected by copyright.

The Regional Arts and Culture Council (RACC) is responsible for 1,832 art objects in its permanent collection owned by the City of Portland and Multnomah County. Most of these objects were made by living artists and are covered by copyright protection. It is the policy of RACC to leave the copyright protection with the artist, reserving for itself a non-exclusive license to reproduce the object for standard collections purposes.

Any reproduction of an artwork with copyright protection is subject to federal copyright law. RACC maintains that it is the responsibility of the person or agency requesting the use of a reproduction to determine whether or not the object is protected, and if so, gain permission to create and/or use the reproduction.

In many cases the use of a reproduction can be considered fair use, meaning that the copyright is infringed, but the use is allowed. Considerations in determining fair use include the purpose or character of the use, the nature and character of the copyrighted work, the amount and substantiality of the portion of the work used, and the market effect on the original work. It is the responsibility of the person or agency creating/using the reproduction to make the determination of fair use.

Any questions about reproducing public art should be directed to Danielle Davis, Public Art Collections Registrar, at 503-823-5405.

The Permittee will be charged for any damages caused by their activities.
