STAY CONNECTED WITH PORTLAND PARKS
Each year, PP&R delivers nearly 50 community gardens scattered throughout Portland in many neighborhoods. Trees color our world and vitalize a city by providing clean air, reducing noise, and reducing air pollution. Trees and native plantings serve as valuable habitats for fish and wildlife. Trees provide important gene pool sites for wildlife, as well as walking, biking, running, and nature study opportunities—all of which are accessible building a healthy mind, body, and spirit.
