Chief's Letter

April 2007

Dear Reader:

I have served as Portland's Chief of Police for slightly less than one year. I feel privileged to work in a profession and in a Bureau that I love. I am proud to be a cop. I am particularly proud to be a Portland Police officer. And I am proud to be Portland's Chief of Police.

When I first became Chief of Police I committed to three things that I think are critical to improving our Community Policing efforts in Portland:

- Building better relationships between the Police Bureau and the community. Relationship building is particularly important with communities that may not traditionally had access to my organization.
- Organizing our resources to achieve maximum impact. We do that by focusing on chronic offenders and repeat calls for service locations.
- Developing and mentoring our personnel. Thus maximizing our most important resource, our people.

I feel we have accomplished much in the short span of a year. I have a great team of leaders in Assistant Chiefs Lynnae Berg, Rod Beard and Brian Martinek. They have each done great work and made significant contributions.

We have committed to having more people providing direct service to the community. Over the past six years, the Police Bureau has lost about 100 police officers and more than 60 non-sworn employees. By focusing on returning more officers to the street and more detectives to the investigation of major crimes we are achieving our goal.

Also, last year's changes are about developing partners and engaging the community in problem solving. Each patrol officer is expected to work on community problems that range from drug houses to Crime Prevention through Environmental Design (CPTED) in local parks. Police officers are spending time interacting with youth in various community programs and making weekly visits to high risk offenders such as sex offenders.

Some changes are made by seizing opportunities for the Police Bureau to learn and grow. A few of the outcomes are already in place from the recent tragedy of the unintentional death of a community member.

- A positive and solid partnership with members of the emergency medical system has been formed. Each aspect of the system has established new procedures to ensure the best medical decisions are being made with the most accurate information that can be provided in a timely manner.
- The Police Bureau is providing every street officer and sergeant with Crisis Intervention Team (CIT) training. Over the next two years, CIT classes will be held monthly to help police officers identify where people who are in crisis are coming from and how to best help them.
- The Police Bureau is partnering with the City of Portland's Independent Police Review Division and the Citizen's Review Committee to study our use of force data and to identify ways to improve our service to the community. Recommendations are expected in 2007.

These are the highlights of our 2006 Annual Report. There have been many others, some less significant and some more procedural that are designed to help police officers do their jobs in a more effective manner. You will find examples of these inside this report.

I will deliver to you the qualities I hold most dear: fairness, honesty, transparency, and compassion. These values are part of every decision I make as the Chief of Police.

Sincerely,

ROSANNE M. SIZER Chief of Police

Roberno Melije

Portland Police Bureau 2006 Accomplishments

Each of the accomplishments listed below relates to one of the following four Police Bureau goals as stated in the 2007 Manual of Policy and Procedure.

Community Goals:

Focus efforts on repeat calls for service and chronic offenders. Enhance the police community relationship.

Organizational Goals:

Develop and encourage employees. Continuously improve work processes.

Bureau Goal 1: Focus efforts on repeat calls for service and chronic offenders.

2006 Year-end stats and trends

Based on the 2006 calendar year end statistics, reported Part I crimes have decreased 13 percent from 2005-2006. Person crimes increased slightly and property crimes were down by 15 percent, compared to 2005.

Case management

A review of the investigative case management system was conducted in 2006 to compare different case management options including creating a separate database to track cases. Case management systems used by other agencies were also examined. The recommendation was that the current case management system could be made to perform all functions of any other system that was examined.

Central Precinct Street Crimes Unit

The Central Precinct Street Crimes Unit (SCU) was formed to conduct livability crime enforcement missions. The unit partners with a precinct weekly Problem Solving workgroup and the Mayor's downtown Public Safety Action Committee to identify and target chronic nuisance areas. In 2006, arrests included: 125 arrests for DCS (Delivery of a Controlled Substance), 181 arrests for PCS (Possession of a Controlled Substance), 27 arrests for violation of the Drug Free Zone, and 57 persons arrested for outstanding warrants. In addition, $7,932 in cash and street level drugs with a street value of $13,280 were seized.

Crime analyst training

A two-week training course for new Bureau crime analysts was implemented in the Planning and Support Division. The class teaches the principles of crime analysis and helps analysts gain skills in various software programs.

Hate Crimes conference

The Detectives Division partnered with the Sexual Minority Roundtable, American Jewish Committee, and the Coalition Against Hate Crimes for the June 2006 Hate Crimes conference focused on increasing diversity tolerance.

Joint DUII (Driving Under the Influence of Intoxicants) saturation patrol

On March 17, 2006, the Traffic Division and East Precinct participated in a joint DUII saturation patrol for St. Patrick's Day celebrations in cooperation with Oregon State Police, Washington State Police and the Clackamas County Sheriff's Office. Central Precinct, Traffic Division, Reserve officers and members of the Oregon Liquor Control Commission patrolled the downtown area.

Meth initiatives

The Drugs and Vice Division hired a drug crime analyst on December 29, 2005 to assist officers in identifying and arresting illegal narcotics traffickers. The Crime Analyst has received over 100 requests for assistance since January 2006.

Project ACCESS

Project ACCESS assessed individuals for mental health and/or substance abuse issues. This is a partnership with the Office of Neighborhood Involvement. Individuals are referred from the Central Precinct chronic offender list and are referred to the program through a Neighborhood Response Team officer. A variety of housing and treatment options are offered. As of November, ACCESS had successfully referred 60 persons in need of treatment to appropriate programs; 31 received inpatient treatment while 21 received outpatient treatment.

Property inventory

The Property Evidence Division (PED) added two full time positions and three temporary positions to its staffing to concentrate on reducing the inventory of disposable property and evidence.

Traffic enforcement missions

Starting July 15, 2006, the Traffic Division began a series of 44 enforcement missions designated to increase motorist safety on the highway system in the Portland Metropolitan area. Through a grant from the Oregon Department of Transportation, traffic officers conducted saturation patrols citing motorists who were speeding, following too close or driving aggressively. The missions resulted in 3,022 citations.

Bureau Goal 2: Enhance the police community relationship.

06-07 Budget workshop

On January 9, 2006, the Bureau held a budget workshop and participants were asked to provide feedback on what core services were most important to them and look at new ways of doing business resulting in efficiencies.

Bike Rodeo

On August 26, 2006, the Portland Police Bureau and Police Foundation held a Bike Rodeo for youth ages 5-11 at the East Portland Community Center where youth traversed through a bicycle skills course and a road course learning how to stay safe while riding their bicycles on imaginary Portland roads. Each child received a certificate of completion and Reserve officers ensured that every bike was equipped with a working headlight and reflector. All participants received a back-to-school backpack with school supplies donated by the Fred Meyer stores.

Tired of Tweekers Crime Prevention Campaign

Drug prevention missions were conducted to reduce meth-related burglaries and property related robberies. East Precinct's Neighborhood Response Team, Property Crime Detectives, Traffic Division, Drugs and Vice Division, Auto Theft Task Force, Identification Division, and the Transit Police Division partnered with the Office of Neighborhood Involvement (ONI), Multnomah County Parole and Probation, and community members to conduct a door-to-door campaign using a three-pronged approach of enforcement, awareness, and prevention.

Community forums

The Police Bureau participated as a partner on the City of Portland Inter-Bureau Task Force (IBTF) to address neighborhood livability problems. Problems brought before the committee are addressed by represented bureaus as a team because these issues are often beyond the jurisdiction of one particular bureau.

Community Policing Strategic Plan workshop

Over 130 participants attended the November 13, 2006 workshop on strategic planning. The planning session focused on new ways to do police work and deliver services that are more effective and innovative. Participants were asked to participate in breakout sessions focused on each of the four Bureau goals and performance measures.

Listening sessions participation

Portland Police Bureau officers participated in listening sessions, hosted by Oregon Action, the Police Bureau, the Center for Intercultural Organizing and the Northwest Constitutional Rights Center. There were five community listening sessions, one held in each precinct. Participants shared their personal experiences, training and policy concerns. The sessions included small group discussions on racial profiling. Approximately 45 Bureau members and 267 community members participated in the sessions.

Recruitment campaign wins award

On May 25, 2006, the Portland Police Bureau received top honors from the National Association of Government Communicators (NAGC). The recruitment campaign "For Every Police Officer There is a Story...Join Us and Write the Next Chapter" won first place in the promotional campaign category. The recruitment DVD won second place in the promotional video category.

Bureau Goal 3: Develop and encourage employees.

Diversity Committee

A Diversity Committee was formed with a cross-section of Bureau members who are of different cultures, sexual orientation, and ethnicities. The committee was charged by the City of Portland Diversity Development Strategic initiative to develop an assessment tool for the Bureau, and design, assess and implement a diversity development program. A first step was to distribute a diversity survey to Bureau members this year.

Emotional survival for law enforcement training for Bureau supervisors

In July, Bureau supervisors attended a mandatory training given by Dr. Kevin Gilmartin on emotional survival for law enforcement. Dr. Gilmartin is a recognized expert in this area. The workshop centered on emotional survival impacts: employee's personal life, organizational relationships and ethical decision making.

Non-sworn training program

A comprehensive non-sworn training program was reinstated in October 2006. Non-sworn employees are required to attend at least 16 hours of training each year. The Training Division conducts a variety of classes and employees may also take classes outside the Bureau that count toward the 16-hour requirement.

Bureau Goal 4: Continuously improve work processes.

Bureau Innovations Project participation

Bureau members participated on several of the Mayor's Bureau Innovation Project teams including: Internal Customer Service to City Bureaus, Citywide Employee Development Program, Customer Service, Community Connect, Public Involvement, Comprehensive Travel Policy, Managing for Results, and the Inter-Bureau Workgroup for the Community Visioning Project.

Critical Incident Commander

This is a newly created detached position. Four sworn members above the rank of lieutenant received extensive training in all areas of critical incident response and are the incident commander for specific emergency responses.

Non-sworn Safety Committee

In June 2006 the Bureau's non-sworn safety committee was reformed. The committee's mission is to promote health and safety in the workplace and is made up of seven non-sworn Bureau members. The committee has completed the non-sworn safety committee charter, conducted an inspection of the Records Division, and are working to revise the safety deficiency reporting process to make it electronic.

Technology research

- Three different motorcycles were evaluated to determine which motorcycle would offer the highest degree of safety and usability. The BMW 1200 was selected.
- Since January 2006, all traffic officers can issue electronic traffic citations from electronic handheld devices.
- On November 29, City Council authorized the installation of six new photo red light camera locations for a total of 12. Recommendations were made for continued expansion of photo red light cameras.
- Research continues in other areas such as helmets and digital in-car camera systems.

Towing/storage

A new impound lot was identified from existing City property. It is expected that the facility will be in operation in January 2007. A full-time temporary Police Records Specialist (PRC) has been hired as of August 22 and is assigned to the Asset Forfeiture Unit.

Significant Events

New Police Chief

On May 22, 2006, Mayor Potter appointed Rosanne M. Sizer as Interim Police Chief, and on July 13, 2006, she was sworn in as the City of Portland's Chief of Police. Chief Sizer was hired in 1985. Her many assignments throughout the Bureau included: patrol officer assigned to North Precinct and the Drugs and Vice Division, Central Precinct and Personnel Division sergeant, Lieutenant at Northeast Precinct and Transit Division, Captain of the Detective Division, and Commander of Central and Southeast Precincts.

Organizational changes

- On September 12, 2006, Brian Martinek was sworn in at the rank of Captain and was promoted to Assistant Chief on September 21. This is the first time the Police Bureau has hired a sworn officer at this rank.
- The manager of the Records Division changed from a non-sworn manager to a Captain position; the Property Evidence Division manager changed from a Lieutenant to a Captain; and the Planning and Support Division manager became a Captain position.

Note: Rates are based on residential population data. Many factors can influence the Rate/1000 Population calculations and can affect meaningful comparisons among neighborhoods. For example, the large work force in the Lloyd, Downtown, Old Town/Chinatown, Pearl and Northwest Industrial neighborhoods can distort the crime rate for those areas.
