Executive Summary

Directive 0414.00, Pregnancy and Lactation Accommodations (formerly Directives 0414.00, Pregnancy, and 0210.20, Milk Expression)

Introduction

The Portland Police Bureau initiated its review of Directive 0414.00, Pregnancy, and Directive 0210.20, Milk Expression, in January 2021. As a result of that review, both policies were consolidated under Directive 0414.00 and renamed “Pregnancy and Lactation Accommodations” to centralize the important information the policies contain.

The Bureau made several significant changes to the revised directive, including providing greater flexibility, resources, and accommodations for pregnant and lactating members. The revised directive also increases transparency about Bureau protocol for pregnancy and lactation, and uses an expansive definition of pregnancy that is consistent with state law and the City of Portland Human Resources Administrative Rule 2.06, Reasonable Employment Accommodations.

Public Comments

The Bureau received several comments during both of the universal review and public comment periods for the directive. Multiple commenters pointed to a need for greater flexibility for the scheduling and duration of lactation breaks. Commenters also sought gender-neutral language in the policy, modified duty assignments for lactation, better options for lactation rooms, lactation accommodations in more circumstances, and weapons qualification accommodations to remain in full duty status while avoiding lead and noise exposure. The revised directive addresses all of the comments received.

Dedicated Lactation Rooms

The Bureau received feedback that existing spaces for lactation were inconvenient and difficult to use because the spaces served other primary purposes. The revised directive establishes dedicated lactation rooms at North Precinct, East Precinct, the Justice Center, the Training Division, and the Penumbra Kelly Building. The revised directive also provides greater detail regarding lactation room requirements, guidance for milk storage, and points to aspirational lactation room features, such as proximity to a refrigerator, microwave, and sink.

Increased Flexibility for Paid Lactation Breaks

The Bureau received several comments discussing a need for greater flexibility for the duration of lactation breaks. While the former directive provided for 30-minute breaks (paid time) up to 3 times per day, the revised directive provides up to 90 minutes of paid breaks total each day for members to divide and use as needed.

Increased Transparency

The revised directive codifies an existing Bureau practice of providing modified duty assignments for lactating members until the member's child is 18 months old. Although this is not a new practice, the revised policy makes the practice official and communicates the existence of this accommodation. Modified duty assignments offer lactating sworn members an alternative option to the challenges presented by pumping while on uniformed patrol. This temporary accommodation supports lactating members to more comfortably and reliably provide breastmilk for their babies.

The revised directive also establishes the practice of offering pregnant sworn members an informational conference with the FMLA Coordinator, FPDR Liaison, HR Business Partner, and an EAP representative to discuss pregnancy-related accommodations and potential leave options. This conference aims to provide better resources and an understanding of Bureau practices to members during their pregnancy.

Finally, the revised directive directs the Personnel Division to maintain a Standard Operating Procedure that outlines the availability and assignment procedures for modified duty assignments. This change increases transparency surrounding how these assignments are determined and provides needed guidance for what pregnant members can expect if and when they are in a modified duty status.

New Weapons Qualification Accommodation

The Bureau received feedback that sought flexibility for pregnant members regarding their weapons qualification requirements. Specifically, commenters expressed interest in remaining in full duty status while avoiding the risk of dangerous levels of lead exposure and noise exposure that exist during traditional weapons qualifications. The revised directive introduces an alternative option of qualifying using a simulated weapons qualification platform, avoiding the lead and noise exposure of qualifying in the firing range.

The Bureau's Revised Policy

The Bureau made significant revisions to Directive 0414.00, Pregnancy and Lactation Accommodations, offering a constructive approach to supporting members through pregnancy and growing their families. The revised directive establishes dedicated lactation rooms, increases flexibility for paid lactation breaks, sheds lights on modified duty as a potential accommodation, and offers greater resources and accommodations for pregnant and lactating members.

The Bureau welcomes further feedback on this policy during its next review.

This directive goes into effect on July 31, 2021. Published on July 1, 2021.

Please provide feedback for this directive re: 5.1. should include something that addresses any necessary variation to the times/breaks, as often, milk expression is not dictated by a schedule and milk can and will come gushing out with no warning. An agreement between lactating member and supervisor can supersede the directive if necessary and appropriate.

As a woman who has had a child, I think this looks like a very reasonable policy. I can see a great deal of consideration has gone into it.

1.7 please clarify member does not need to notify as soon as physically able to return to duty, if they are still within their 12 weeks of FMLA leave. They aren't required to notify anyone of anything during that time, in my understanding.
Section 5, Lactation, as with pregnancy, is different in each case, and 30 minutes may not be enough time for a lactating person to "let down" milk to express/pump. Please consider adding some flexibility for lactating members to discuss possible adjustments to break schedule, like 2 of 45 minutes or 1 of 90 minutes.

People using she/her/hers pronouns are not the only ones who lactate. Remove gendered language and replace with they/them/theirs.

4.7 States that the member expressing the milk should plan to express during a meal break. I know when I expressed, my breasts determined that time, not my hunger. I feel this section is unnecessary. I don't feel that a woman will go 10-7 to pump and then turn around and go 10-82. We already make ourselves feel guilty that we are missing out on work as it is.

7.1 When an officer gains a bunch of weight and or loses weight we buy them appropriate equipment, correct? I feel this is no different than that. Choosing to grow your family, should not be a punishment.

During a lactation contract, women should be offered an off the street job as an accommodation. This is a short term ask, and it could mean keeping a valuable employee working for PPB. Wearing a vest while lactating is very painful, pumping during patrol duty is very stressful. Its not fair to make women choose to breast feed their baby or go back to work.

Rename this policy, something about lactation and please fold it into 414.00 Pregnancy.

Consider adding "or have recently given birth" to accommodate women who have experienced the death of a child and are still lactating.

First suggestion is to change the name from milk expression to some version including lactation. Secondly, East precinct has a tiny closet with no chair (Honor Guard Room) set aside. Every member of HG knows the code to get into that room. Explore a better option. North uses a quiet room....I think we can do better for our people.

Offer off-street positions for the 18 month lactation contract. Imagine having to get dressed in full uniform three times a day. No good.

This policy says that just because you are pregnant, you can still choose to perform your full duties. If this is the case, we need the policy to allow women to skip a qualification cycle due to pregnancy. Loud noises have been known to cause spontaneous abortions, therefore if you are trying to get pregnant or are early on in your pregnancy adventure, YOU SHOULD NOT SHOOT. However, many women don't want to come off of patrol just because they are trying to get pregnant or within the first 4 months. Forcing them to qualify makes a woman choose, do I work full duty? Or try to grow my family?
