Introductions/Announcements

6:00

Central City Multimodal Project

6:10

Gabe Graff, PBOT project manager for this central city project will discuss the project's scope, timing and kick-off scheduled for this fall.

The Big Jump

6:30

People for Bikes, the organization that created the Green Lane Project, is now advancing a similar initiative called "The Big Jump". People for Bikes intends that the Big Jump do for bikeway networks what the Green Lane Project did for protected bicycle lanes. Portland will be submitting an application to be one of ten cities selected for this effort. Timur Ender, a Policy Advisor in Commissioner Novick's office, is leading Portland's effort and will present the city's effort to be one of ten Big Jump cities.

Ride!

6:55

There have recently been some interesting and challenging projects in the Central City and environs. This ride will feature the new bicycle lanes on 2nd and 3rd Avenues and Naito Parkway as well as a look at the eastside diverters on the Clinton neighborhood greenway. We'll venture past one of the city's eight existing crossbikes and explore the new connection to the Morrison Bridge bikeway. Ride will be approximately 10-15 miles. Bring lights!
