6:40-7:10: Connected Centers Street Plan (40 min); Denver Igarta, PBOT

Denver will share proposals in the draft Connected Centers Street Plan, a strategy to realize new street/pathway connections as sites develop on blocks that do not meet the City's connectivity requirements. Focusing in the Jade District and Rosewood neighborhood centers, the Plan aims to achieve new connections and in turn improved access for walking and bicycling as well as motor vehicles. While Portland's long-range planning policies envision Centers in Eastern Neighborhoods as dense, walkable communities, their level of street connectivity is amongst the lowest citywide. In collaboration with BPS' Better Housing by Design project, the plan proposes revisions to the zoning code and design standards that shape development in Portland's multi-dwelling zones. Denver will walk the group through the draft zoning code changes, routes on the planned pedestrian network, new connection options (and order of consideration), etc. and solicit feedback from the committee.

Key questions/issues for the PAC:

What might we need to modify about our approach to make new connections more likely? How can we transform these areas into more pedestrian-oriented places?
