Updating street guidelines and standards in the River District.

The Portland Bureau of Transportation is making technical updates to the River District Master Street Plan and River District Right of Way Standards to reflect proposals for the USPS Masterplan and to incorporate council adopted planning for the Central City, including the Green Loop, Central City in Motion and the Enhanced Transit Corridors Plan. These documents set the expectation for new street design and construction and must be amended for conformance between adopted plans and Central City Master Plan proposals.

PROPOSED CHANGES

Master Street Plan

- Classification of NW Kearney St as a full street connection rather than a pedestrian connection through the USPS Post Office Site.

Planning Framework

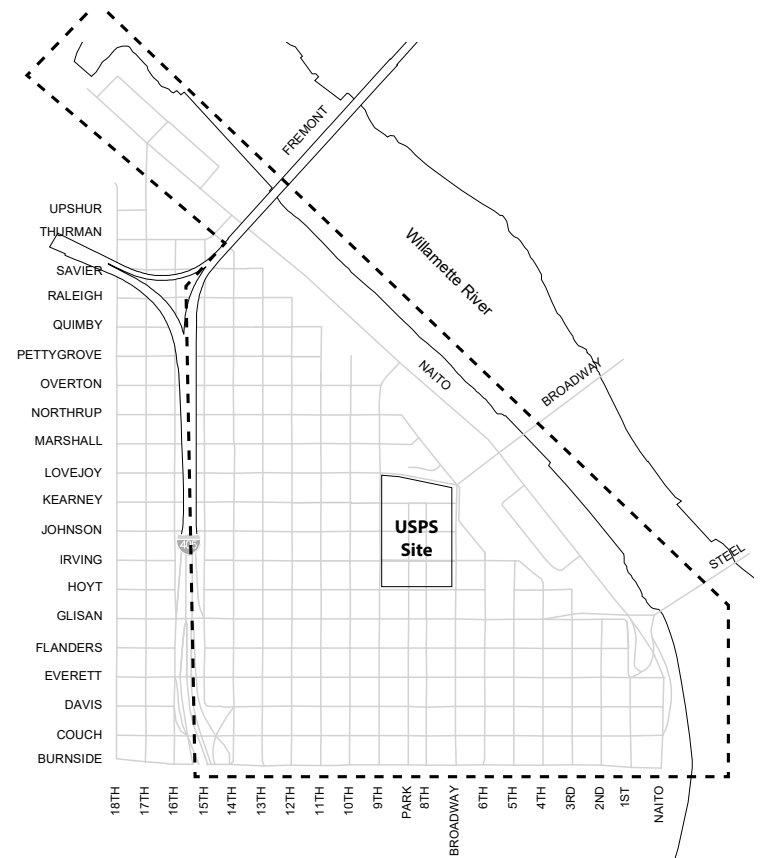

- Classification of Johnson St as a special street with level-surface plaza-like design between Park & 8th Ave
- Classification of Park Ave as a special street with level-surface plaza-like design.
- Classification of the Green Loop path traveling from the Broadway Bridge predominantly along NW Park Ave.

Performance Criteria

- Expanded guidance on bicycle facilities to include Protected Bike Lanes; Neighborhood Greenways; Bicycle Parking Corrals
- Expanded guidance on transit facilities to include Transit Only Lanes; Business Access and Transit lanes and Transit Stops with Bikeways.
- New guidance on the Green Loop path.

Design Standards

- Schematic design standards for level-surface plaza-like street design on Johnson St and Park Ave.

The River District Area includes Northwest Portland bound by I-405, W Burnside St and the Willamette River. This includes parts of the Pearl District, Old Town, and Northwest District areas.
